

HAUNTED HISTORY TOUR

Usually reserved for some thrills around the campfire, ghost stories have found their way into the everyday culture and history of Los Angeles and its famous landscape. Perhaps it has something to do with Hollywood's taste for a spooky tale, but this town is riddled with some pretty interesting stories of ghostly apparitions lurking around world-renowned locations and landmarks. From the lingering spirits at the Hollywood Bowl to the murder of mobsters in Beverly Hills to a tragic suicide at the Hollywood Sign.

On today's tour Curt Tucker will lead you on a path where shadows walk the streets and phantoms and spirits come to life as we visit the scariest...the creepiest...and the most haunted sights in Los Angeles. You will experience for yourself some of the notorious hot spots for the paranormal, fueled by the energy of the spirits which haunt them. We'll explore sights in Downtown, Hollywood, Mid-Wilshire, and Boyle Heights.

We will visit two Cemeteries with ominous vibrations both riddled with stories of hauntings and apparitions, we will get out at the Haunted Gaylord Apartments, the 1924 classic and haunted relic on Wilshire Boulevard and we will dine with an included lunch at the deliciously haunted HMS Bounty.

After lunch we will drive to the Country Club Park Historic District, one of early Los Angeles' most prestigious neighborhoods and now home to several haunted mansions. We will head downtown and listen for the footsteps and voices heard in Pico House and try to figure out who is haunting the old suite at the Cecil Hotel. It wouldn't be a haunted tour without hearing the story of the bomb that leveled the L.A. Times building killing 21 people, and pondering what is perhaps the city's oldest cold case: the infamous 1947 murder of Elizabeth Short, "The Black Dahlia"
